FOLLOWING so closely upon the retention of half of the $11,000 fine imposed upon the Hongkong, Canton and Macao

Steamboat Company, the recent action of the Executive against the Hongkong

& Whampoa Dock Company is probably unprecedented in the annals of Colonial administration. The indiscretion exhibited by His Excellency the Governor, and his apparent hostility to the community as shown by his public acts, are becoming even more marked and are now arousing a feeling in the minds of Colonial residents stronger even than that called forth at the public meeting

Agents have offered the junk men that sum, which, I believe they are willing to accept.

J. J. Sullivan, sworn, states:—I am second mate of the Amoy. I had the first watch from 8 to 10 on the 2nd Oct. The ship was bound to Hongkong, steering W. by S. going 9 knots. One man was on the raised forecastle. A quarter-master was with me on the bridge. The weather was fine and nearly calm. The moon set at 11.30 p.m. We passed a large number of junks in the first watch going to sea. We altered course several times to clear them. At about 11 p.m. I called the attention of the engineer on watch. I passed a barque on her port side. While passing the barque a fleet of junks was crossing my bows, standing seawards. I could not port my helm to pass under their sterns as I should then have run into the barque. I put the helm hard to starboard to keep clear of the barque. The first mate then came on deck. A junk was 4 points on our starboard bow. The first mate stopped the engines. After the engines were stopped we were going a knot to 2 knots an hour. The junk on our starboard bow struck us about 20 ft. abaft the stem. Our cat-and-fish davits were in their places. I went to the forecastle, and the look-out man told me that he had shouted to the junkmen to go about, but that they were apparently asleep. A quarter-master and some sailors were at the wheel. I followed the junk along the deck until the junk was clear of the propeller. I saw that the masts were knocked out of the vessel, but she did not seem to have suffered greater damage. I did not blow the whistle, because I thought, I might confuse the junks that were about. I did not call the Captain, as I did not see the necessity of doing so. The engines were not backed to stop the ship's way. The sails were aback as the ship had been brought head to wind. I don't know how the ship's head was when the collision occurred.

F. P. Anbin, sworn, said:—I am Chief mate of the Amoy. At midnight, 2nd and 3rd Oct., I was called to relieve the deck. When I got on the bridge I heard the second mate give orders to "hard a starboard." I saw we were in the middle of a fleet of junks. I saw one that could not clear us unless she altered her course. She had no lights. (The rest of this witness's evidence was corroborative of that given by the second mate.)

Hung Afook, seaman on the Amoy: I went on watch at 12 midnight. He did not see the collision. I was on watch on the forecastle; it was a fine night; there was a little rain, lasting about 2 minutes. I have been over 14 months on board, and do not know port from starboard. The junk struck the steamer on the starboard side. The bow of the junk struck the steamer; I do not know what damage was done. The junk was not damaged. I do not know whether any ropes were broken. The foremast of the junk was broken, none of the other masts were broken. I did not see if there were any persons on the junk. It was night. I saw a barque on the starboard side some distance off. I heard people on the junk screaming, but could not see them. As soon as the junk struck the steamer I saw there were people on board and heard them scream. I now say I did not hear them scream, and I did not see them. This witness was cautioned about telling lies.

Easen, a quarter-master on board S. S. Amoy, said: I was on watch on the bridge from 8 to 12 on the night in question. I was on the lookout for vessels and junks. I saw a junk about 12 o'clock. I saw no other junks during the first watch. At 10 minutes past twelve I saw a barque on the starboard bow. One junk stood close on to the Amoy. The order was given "hard a starboard" when the junk was seen. The Chief Officer ordered the engine to be stopped. They were stopped. The junk's bow struck the steamer on the starboard side. The junk's foremast was broken but not the mainmast. The Chief Officer was on the bridge, but did not order witness to call the Captain.

Ho Fung, master of a fishing junk bearing a Hongkong licence 2814, said: I sent in a petition to the Governor. The junk is now at Sow-ki-wan. I was on board my junk in company with the one that went down. I am owner of junk 2814. The other junk carried a Hongkong licence, No. 1545. Ho Shung Hoi, witness's father, was owner. There were 14 persons on board the junk. Some were relatives; my wife, one son and one daughter, one sister unmarried, and a brother-in-law and eight seamen. The lost junk was my grandfather's, who left it to my father. About 11 p.m. 2nd instant my junk was sailing in company with my father's junk. We were not fishing at the time. The two junks when not fishing always keep in sight of each other. I saw a steamer come down upon my father's junk. The wind was E. I was standing out to sea, and my bows were S.E. I was about 50 chong (160 yds.) from my father's junk when I saw her run down. I had no light, the other junk had. It is customary that when two junks sail together one only shows a light. I saw the steamer strike the junk amidships on the port side. The junk was instantly capsized, turned upside down. The moon was up at daybreak. The steamer continued her course after the collision. I immediately went in a small boat and tried to pick up those who were drowning. When I got to the wreck the steamer was far away from me. No other junk rendered assistance. I picked up twelve souls. There were some junks close by, but they gave no assistance. Of the junk's crew, six persons were lost—my father and mother, 1 niece, 2 nephews and 1 seaman were lost. The day before the collision I saw these persons on board.

Qua Fung Tsai, a fisherman who was on board the junk when it went down:—I was sleeping in the hold. The junk belongs to my father and of course I am disinherited. In a fishing junk it is only one who comes on deck, the steerman. All the others go to sleep. Heard the steerman shout out, got up the hatch-way and saw the steamer strike the junk. He was not in the same place with his father and mother. The junk when struck turned over directly. The steamer did not stop; last witness saved his life.

Taung Yeh-Hi:—I was steerman of the junk that was sunk. There were five or six persons on deck besides myself when the collision occurred. They were awake. I shouted out that a steamer was coming and then these men came up. We carried a light on the aftermast. It was raining heavily and continued for half an hour. I only saw one light, a yellow one, as soon as I saw the light the steamer struck. There was no one else on the look-out. The steamer struck the junk with her bows on the port side, and the junk capsized.

Mr Sullivan re-examined:—About 11 p.m. I rang the telegraph to tell the engineer to stand-by as there were a number of junks near us. When we were clear I put the steamer full speed.

The Court was then cleared, and reopened in the course of an hour. The decision of the Court will not be published till after the Governor's approval.

THE CASE AGAINST THE STEAM-TUG FAME.

ALLEGED BREACH OF THE COLONIAL VESSEL REGISTER ORDINANCE.

SUMMONS DISMISSED.

Alexander Stopani, master of the S. S. Fame, was charged for that since the 24th day of August 1869, being in command of the British owned vessel called the Fame, he unlawfully did trade within the harbour of this Colony, without complying with the requirements of Ordinance No. 4, of 1865, entitled "An Ordinance to establish a proper system of registration for Colonial Vessels;" and also unlawfully did neglect to produce the register of the said vessel to be endorsed as required by sections 5, 9, and 10 of the said Ordinance.

The case was to have been taken at 12 o'clock, but at the request of Mr Brereton, it was postponed till 2 o'clock, by which time it was expected that Mr Oresagh who was engaged in another Court would be free to take it up. At two o'clock Mr Oresagh was still engaged, and as had been arranged before-hand, Mr Plunket proceeded with the hearing.

Mr J. E. Sharp, Crown Solicitor, prosecuted on behalf of the Crown; and the Captain of the Fame was defended by Mr T. C. Haylar, Q.C., instructed by Messrs Brereton and Wotton, Mr Brereton appearing.

Mr Sharp, in opening the case, said this was a summons against the master of the steamer Fame for an infringement of certain provisions of Ordinance No. 4, of 1865, which was "An Ordinance to establish a proper system of registration for Colonial Vessels." There were several sections under which the prosecution said he had rendered himself liable. By Section No. 1 it was provided that "from and after the passing of this Ordinance no ship or vessel whatsoever owned by a British subject shall be at liberty to trade in any of the harbours of this Colony unless in the case of an outward trading ship or vessel she be provided with a certificate of registry, in conformity with the Imperial Acts of Parliament in that behalf; and in the case of a China trading ship or vessel she has in all respects complied with the requirements of this Ordinance."

The Magistrate: Then, I suppose, this is what you call a China trading ship?

Mr Haylar: No; I deny that entirely.

Mr Sharp: Yes. It is not only the proper mode of describing the vessel, but by solemn declaration which I hold in my hand she is so defined. But that will be matter for argument.

The Magistrate: You bring this action against the Fame as a China trading ship?

Mr Sharp: Precisely. The next section, under which she is summoned is No. 5, by which it is provided that "the register of every Colonial registered ship or vessel shall be produced once at least every six months to the Harbour Master, who shall endorse the date of such production on such register, upon pain of forfeiture of such production or the forfeiture of such register, unless satisfactory cause for such non-production be shown to the Colonial Secretary."

The Magistrate: For what term is the original register?

Mr Sharp: By Sec. 10, Your Worship will see "for one year from the date of such register and no longer."

Mr Sharp: $25.

The Magistrate: Yes, I see, and $10 for renewal.

Mr Sharp: And there is in addition a fee of $25 for the Harbour Master's certificate without which no register can be obtained. Coming now to the facts of the case against the defendant, he would be able to prove, Mr Sharp continued, that on the 26th August 1865, this steamer Fame was registered under this local Ordinance. There was, as his Worship would see, the Imperial and local Ordinances under either of which she could be registered. There were very serious fines and penalties imposed, as his Worship would see, for non-registration. With regard to this Colonial Ordinance it had been passed for the convenience—

Mr Haylar: What serious fines and penalties are there imposed for non-registration?

Mr Sharp: There are such imposed by Sec. 19 of the Merchant Shipping Act.

Mr Haylar: I never heard of them before, I must say.

Mr Brereton: You can stop her clearance; that is all.

Mr Sharp, proceeding with his statement, said this vessel was registered in the name of Mr Douglas Lapraik and Mr Thomas Sutherland, the latter now one of the Managing Directors of the P. & O. S. N. Co.

Mr Haylar: And Mr Lapraik is dead and gone long ago.

Mr Sharp: Are they declared owners as representing any company or partnership?

Mr Sharp: On the contrary, they solemnly declare that no one else has any interest in the vessel.

His Worship: And one of them has been dead for some time. I am to take it for granted, I suppose, that this register has been regularly produced to the Harbour Master every six months and regularly renewed every year?

Mr Haylar: No, No, Your Worship. I think not. Better take nothing at all for granted.

Mr Sharp: The signatories of this bond, Mr Douglas Lapraik, and Mr Sutherland, set forth in their bond that the Fame is a vessel destined for trading with China; it was in 1865.

His Worship: Had they been running her before then under a license?

Mr Haylar: No; I fancy she had just come out.

His Worship: What was she engaged in then?

Mr Haylar: The same as she is doing now. She was there in the harbour, towing ships and anything else the Dock Company gave her to do.

His Worship: Is that trading?

Mr Sharp: That is a question I hope to deal specially with presently.

His Worship: They must have thought it was trading else they would not have taken out this license. They must have thought they had to take out this license or they would not have done so. You say her regular employment has been towing vessels in the harbour?

Mr Sharp: I don't say so; but I say that any business of that kind done for money is trading.

His Worship: Are these lighters in the harbour, for instance, which deliver goods from vessels—are they traders?

Mr Sharp: I should say they are traders.

His Worship: Are they licensed?

Mr Sharp: If your Worship will refer to any authority or dictionary on the subject, it will be easy to define what trading is.

His Worship: I don't think there is any special dictionary on the subject. I have none.

Mr Sharp: They elected to register the ship under this Ordinance, and her register has been going on ever since. The fresh endorsements required by the Ordinance were made, as was to be shown by the book of register kept in the Colonial Secretary's Office, and the same record showed, as did the certificate of register which remained in the Captain's hands, that the register was from time to time renewed according to section 10, and everything was done and shown by the Fame to prove that she was registered and recognised as under this Ordinance until the 23rd August last, when the last renewal, signed by the Governor on the 23rd September 1868, expired.

Mr Brereton: A month after her license expired.

Mr Sharp: According to the provisions of the Ordinance it ought to have been presented to the Colonial Secretary one week before the date of expiration of the twelve months, for renewal. This was not done, and I don't suppose these proceedings would have been taken unless on former occasions there had been a neglect in carrying out the provisions of the Ordinance with regard to this same register; in fact, it might have been overlooked. But because of this I am now instructed to take these proceedings.

Mr Wodehouse will produce the Register kept in the Colonial Secretary's office, or rather a certified copy, which under another Ord. was to be taken in any Court as equivalent to the Register itself. The copy was certified by the Colonial Secretary (Sec. quoted). I put it that the Register speaks for itself; it shows all the endorsements made, and renewals; but I shall put Mr Wodehouse in the box, and ask him as to all the endorsements and declarations which he will produce regarding this ship. These papers with his evidence will speak for themselves and will really complete my case; but I shall also call other evidence to prove that she has been lying in port and has been towing vessels and has been trading in the waters of this Colony since the 23rd of August without any register whatever.

Mr Wodehouse, put in the witness-box, produced the following documents:—

1. The original registration dated August 23rd, 1865.

2. The Harbour-Master's certificate on which the vessel was registered; dated 26th July, 1865.

3. The declaration required by the Ordinance Sec. 2, in which it was set forth that the vessel was designed for trade with China and none other; and, also,

4. The bonds executed by Thos. Sutherland and Douglas Lapraik and two sureties whereby they bound themselves to at all times comply, on behalf of the Fame, with all the provisions of Ordinance No. 4 of 1865.

Mr Haylar: I have not seen this bond until now. What is it? Who are the parties to it? (Shown the bond) I take an objection to the admission of this bond inasmuch as it has nothing whatever to do with the case; it has nothing whatever to do with Mr Stopani, and cannot therefore be admitted.

The Magistrate: Why do you not object to the admission of the other documents?

Mr Haylar: They are entirely on a different basis. Here is a bond signed by Mr Douglas Lapraik, and Mr Thomas Sutherland in 1865, now sought to be used as evidence against my client, the Captain of the Fame, a gentleman named Stopani. It is one of the commonest axioms of law that the parties to a bond are the parties to be sued under this bond. The signatories are the parties to be sued under this bond if Mr Sharp wants to sue under it. I presume we are being sued under this bond if Mr Sharp wants to put it in.

Mr Sharp: Mr Stopani is the defendant in this suit merely as the Agent of the owners.

Mr Haylar: One of the men to the bond is dead and under the ground, and you want to bring Mr Stopani in under the bond.

His Worship: The only charge against Mr Stopani is that he has been trading in a vessel having no license; that is how the case strikes my mind. If any license were in existence, then some one might be liable under the bond.

Mr Sharp: I must put it in. I really desire to put it in. It is a portion of the complete case I desire to lay before the Court.

His Worship: You can put it in so far. You can put it in to show me the whole history of this vessel, and when the question arises as to how far it at all can be used against Mr Haylar's client, the question can be argued.

Mr Sharp: We are not suing on the bond.

Mr Haylar: You are apparently trying to recover a penalty on the bond.

The Court: If there is any case against the present defendant, it must come under Sec. 1.

Mr Sharp: Then, presuming there is an infringement under Sec. 1, the 11th section provides for the penalty to be imposed for the same; the words "for any infringement."

The Court: That will be argued, I have no doubt. You can put in this bond as part of the history of the Fame for the last 7 or 8 years.

Mr Haylar: Twelve years.

Mr Brereton: Fourteen, your Worship (a laugh).

Mr Haylar: If the bond is only put in so far, I withdraw my objection. If it is attempted to use it for any other purpose—

His Worship: It will then be open to question.

Mr Wodehouse: I produce the bond already mentioned and the usual declaration of ownership. The certificate of register corresponding to this register of the Fame has not been produced to the Colonial Secretary's office for renewal since the 23rd August last, to the best of my knowledge.

ledge. The register is kept in my office. I should have known of it had it been produced, I believe.

Mr Brereton: It was not presented until the 14th October.

The Magistrate: Then the Fame is in the position of a ship without a register.

Mr Haylar: We have had no register since the 23rd August; that's quite correct.

Mr Brereton: We have not had any for two years, in fact.

Mr Wodehouse: (To the Court) The fee is $10 for renewal.

Inspector Mathieson: I am in charge of the Water Police. I have seen the Fame towing and steaming about in the harbour since August 23rd. On the 4th inst. I saw her towing the Victor Emanuel (H.M.S.). I have seen her almost every day, but have taken no particular notice of dates. This morning I saw her towing the Ocean from the Kowloon harbour to a buoy in the centre of the harbour. I cannot swear I have seen her every day, but I have seen her very often. I cannot recollect any other dates than that I have given.

To the Court:—I have never seen her employed in any other way than towing, only in 1874 I saw her bringing in some shipwrecked people.

W. Speechly: I am boarding officer attached to the Harbour Master's Office. I have seen the Fame steaming in the harbour on several occasions, since the 23rd August. On the 29th September I saw her towing a vessel to the wharves (Green Island as it is going out of the harbour. I have been on board the Fame. I know she is used as a tug-boat. I never saw or know her being used as anything else.

Mr Sharp: Have you seen her plying between here and the Docks?

Witness: Not if you mean plying for hire.

Mr Sharp: Have you seen her crossing and recrossing to and from the Docks?

Witness: I have seen her going across for a ship and then tugging her over.

Mr Haylar: She is generally looked upon as a tug-boat?—Certainly.

The Court: Unless she was very flagrantly contravening the law she could not have been trading with China without a clearance from your office?—Certainly not.

Mr Haylar: As a matter of fact we never applied for a clearance.

Mr Sharp: I admit that.

Capt. Gomer of the Hainan was called as a witness for the prosecution, but did not answer to his name, and to do away with the necessity for an adjournment, or for more witnesses being examined after the Court had heard him, (to which course he was quite ready to submit) Mr Haylar said he was perfectly willing to admit that the Fame left here on Saturday and proceeded to St. John's Island, which is South of Macao, that she there picked up the str. Hainan, whose shaft was broken, and towed her into port, arriving here on Monday morning. This was done in the way of business.

Mr Sharp: Money was received for the service rendered?

The Court: I have got it down,—“in the way of business.”

Mr Haylar: I am perfectly willing to try the case on the fairest basis,—as to what the Fame has done. She has towed ships, distressed ships and others, and been paid for it. Everything a tug could lawfully do she has done.

Mr Sharp: And I suppose you will admit she carries goods backwards and forwards to the Docks.

Mr Haylar: I will admit nothing of that kind, although I don't think it would make the slightest difference; the summons is wide of the mark anyhow.

Mr Sharp: But does she not carry goods, materials, to the Docks?

Mr Brereton: We will admit she carries coals for her own consumption (a laugh).

Case for the prosecution closed.

Mr Sharp submitted that without the last two witnesses, that is resting solely on the documents that had been put in and the evidence of Mr Wodehouse, his case was completely made out, unless his learned friend could produce a register on which the endorsements appeared according to the Ordinance.

The Court: That is with an endorsement later than 23rd Nov. last year.

Mr Sharp, continuing, said that unless his friend could do that he submitted that the case be undertaken to prove against the defendant was made out, under Sections 5 and 10, which he would take first, and certainly under Sec. 1.

The Magistrate: We have had no evidence whatever, Mr Sharp, of the certificate not having been produced to the Harbour Master.

Mr Sharp: Where is the endorsement? There has been none.

The Magistrate: There has been no evidence on that point. The Harbour Master's officer who had here said nothing about it. Mr Wodehouse said nothing about it. The Ordinance does not say it shall be entered in the Register at the time. You have brought nothing and nobody to prove it.

Mr Sharp: It is for the defendant to prove he has produced it; by showing the endorsement.

His Worship: You could have subpoenaed the Harbour Master. You have proved no infringement under Section 5.

Mr Sharp: The Harbour Master has no regular record of the registers produced to him.

His Worship: That makes it the more difficult to prove this one has not produced, perhaps; but the Court has nothing to do with that. I have evidence before me the register was not renewed, if that is any good. You must satisfy my mind on everything, you know. I have never had a case like this before, and you must tell me all about it.

Mr Brereton: This is the first case of the kind there has ever been in Court.

Mr Sharp: I say the evidence is sufficient if it is shown, and your Worship says it has been proved to your satisfaction, that she failed to renew her register. The 11th Sect. provides certain penalties for any offence, not for some offences only under this Ordinance, but for any offence whatever under this Ordinance.

The Magistrate: The question which forces itself on my mind is this,—can a vessel not take a license or register out for a year or two, or three years, and drop it whenever she likes? Is it not like a man who takes a license for a house; it may be a conditional license that if he does certain things he shall be entitled to a renewal of it by endorsement simply at the end of the year? Is he bound to renew it at the end of the year? Is the case not exactly on all fours with this? Can you show me any reason or any authority or any condition in the Ordinance which prevents him dropping it at the end of the year, and that without any notice whatever? It seems to me, unless you can prove I am wrong on this, you will have to confine yourself entirely to section 1. It comes to be purely a charge against Mr Stopani of trading without a register.

Mr Sharp: But they have elected to register under this local Ordinance, and their observance of the Ordinance they have elected to register under—

Mr Haylar: Must go on for ever, I suppose. Strange argument.

Mr Sharp: No. Until the vessel can produce her register under the Imperial Act.

His Worship: Let me put it this way. A woman registers herself as a prostitute for a year. After her year is out could you prosecute her under the O. D. Act?

Mr Sharp: No, but the cases are not analogous.

His Worship: Then, how long is your register to continue; as long as the ship lasts, or what?

Mr Sharp: As long as they elect to come under the local Ordinance.

His Worship: It seems to me they have elected not to come under it any longer.

Mr Sharp: Then I submit confidently she has brought herself under Sec. 1.

Mr Haylar: What? Trading with the Coast Ports of China?

Mr Sharp: No, not the Coast Ports of China; that is not necessary; in the harbours and waters of this Island.

Mr Haylar: Oh, I'll have a word to say on that.

His Worship: Then, under that section is the Captain responsible?

Mr Sharp: He is the agent of the owners.

Mr Haylar: You can proceed against the owners.

Mr Sharp: Then another infringement has been committed in not having the change of the ownership registered.

Mr Haylar: No. A change of owners in a ship can only take place according to law in one way, by a bill of sale. No such bill of sale has been made in connection with this ship. So that legally the ownership of the vessel has not changed.

Mr Sharp: Then the registered agents are not in the Colony.

His Worship: Then who are the agents?

Mr Sharp: The Captain always.

His Worship: Is there any other in this case?

Mr Haylar: No.

His Worship: Then, Mr Haylar, suppose this illegal trading under sec. 1 proved, would you question the Captain's being the right man to suffer the penalty?

Mr Haylar: Yes. And I would question a great deal more too.

His Worship: Then you confine yourself only now, Mr Sharp, to the 1st Sec.

Mr Sharp: Certainly not. I submit that a case has been made out on all the Sections, No. 1, No. 5, No. 9 and No. 10. No. 9 I would not press, of course, after what Mr Haylar has just said.

His Worship: With regard to Sec. 5, we have not had a particle of proof. You cannot bring a man here and ask me to impose this penalty on him if he is not able to clear himself. It is for you to prove your case. In order to clear the way I shall now hear what Mr Haylar has to say on the charges other than that under Sec. 1, which stands by itself.

Mr Haylar, in order to come to a proper understanding of the Ordinance as a whole, said it was necessary to look at the preamble and to read in connection therewith sect. 1 and 11, and then they would have the whole thing in a nutshell. The object of the bill was thus set forth:—“Whereas many illegal acts have resulted from the improper use of registers granted at Hongkong under the provisions of the Imperial Acts to vessels employed solely in trading with the mainland of China, and it is necessary that legal trading should be protected and illegal trading prevented: Be it therefore enacted.” This was the one of the whole purpose of the Act; it was to stop illegal trading with the mainland of China. Wallace laid it down that it was impossible to understand an Ordinance without carefully having in view in connection with every section the preamble, the purpose of the act. This Ordinance was directed against smuggling. There had been a great deal of smuggling, and in order to prevent its continuance this very peculiar Ordinance was passed. Vessels carrying the British flag used to go away up to the non-treaty ports and create great abuses. So this Sec. 1 was passed, providing that “no ship or vessel whatsoever owned by a British subject shall be at liberty to trade in any of the harbours of this Colony, unless in the case of an outward trading ship or vessel she be provided with a certificate of registry in conformity with the Imperial Acts of Parliament in that behalf;
